

Your Health & Medtech Public Relations Partners

While the medical industry continues to experience new challenges, it also continues to rapidly evolve with innovative, life-changing technologies that you're bringing to market that, not too long ago, felt unfathomable.

Our team is driven by a deep desire to help improve people's quality of life, and over the past 15 years has gained deep experience helping more than 60 medtech clients of all sizes and at all stages successfully navigate the unique challenges of the industry.

The Bellmont Partners Health Team is well-versed in the art of translating the specialized, complex language of the health community into easy-to-understand, compelling content that influences behavior, drives brand recognition and increases engagement.

From physicians to patients, R&D to regulatory, venture capitalists and everyone in between, we tailor messaging to a wide range of internal and external audiences to help our health and medtech clients achieve their goals.

OUR TEAM

The Minneapolis-based Bellmont Partners Health Team works closely with medical device and technology companies of all sizes and stages, to gain maximum visibility for their most important milestones – everything from announcing clinical trial results, fundraising and personnel news, FDA approval and commercialization, and more.

Named Health Care Agency of the Year by Ragan and PR Daily's national Ace Awards, the Bellmont Partners team delivers big ideas, creativity and senior-level strategic experience, combined with the proven ability to drive measurable business impact. Our team members are experienced and award-winning PR strategists, media relations pros, content creators, digital specialists, copywriters, event coordinators and former journalists, all adept at working closely with you and your colleagues, partners and stakeholders.
